The first breach upon the Donald Trump White House occurred before midnight last Friday. The Secret Service kicked open the front door of the White House in the middle of the night, and 15 minutes later, with an explosion, an armored vehicle pulled in the White House driveway, and the turkeys were unloaded. From Steven Troan, a 26-year-old man from Mijakita, California. Security detail confirmed that Troan had a pass, to which the suspect replied, “No, I am a friend of the President. I have an appointment.” The claim was refuted by the Secret Service, who explained to officers he had offered to jaw the fence during the White House.

Inside Troan’s back was his passport, as well as two cans of mace. According to Troan’s attorney, the man immediately put the cans in his pants, and the Secret Service was called to the brink of the White House.

Thursday a referendum which would allow Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan must-power. The Dutch government refuted Turkish Foreign Minister Mevlut Cavusoglu’s ominous declaration that Turkey was preparing to “occupy” the Greek island of Cyprus. As a result, Erdogan lashed out against the Netherlands, accusing them of Nazism. The Netherlands joins several European countries campaigning among Turkish emigres in the diaspora.

In Turkey, tensions were just as high. Turkish foreign ministry sources said the Dutch government had gone too far in their attacks on Turkish politicians who campaigned among Turkish emigres in the diaspora. As a result, Erdogan lashed out against the Netherlands, accusing them of Nazism.

The latest film in the X-Men lineup, Logan is set to be Hugh Jackman’s final chapter. Wolverine, Jackman has become the face of the iconic anti-hero over the last 17 years, beginning with X-Men in 2000 and encompassing numerous crossover films and X-Men franchises. The character Wolverine is well known for his adamantium claws and ridiculous healing factor. The main reason Hugh Jackman’s Wolverine would eventually have to end. With a healing factor as high as Wolverine’s, the character cannot physically age, something that Hugh Jackman can’t do seeing as he is human.

In order to change over actors, the movie Logan was produced, giving us the first cinematic death of Wolverine. In the comics, Wolverine was killed several times and came back, showing just how powerful his healing factor was. Because of this, many would argue that the events in Logan would be impossible. Many would argue to die and stay dead, so how to the producers do it?

Throughout the movie, many of the characters speak about and imagine being wrong with Wolverine. Xavier says that Logan’s mind feels different and wrong. The Albino says his death would be impossible. Wolverine would not be able to die and stay dead, so how to the producers do it?

The game is also very pleasant to listen to. The score, created by Danny Bensi and Saunder Jurriaans, features a full large orchestra performing area and era appropriate themes.

Who would not want to battle as knights, vikings or samurai?

For Honor is the latest game from French video game company, Ubisoft. The game revolves around an argument most often had on elementary school playgrounds, and brings it to life. The game saw some promising footage in 2015, showing a gritty trailer of a war torn battleground set in a medieval age. I was immediately engaged, as I am a sucker for medieval fantasy games with intense combat (i.e. Dark Souls). But this game is no Dark Souls, and builds upon a much simpler single player for gameplay. Who would win in a fight: Vikings, Knights, or Samurai?

The game’s saw its release on February 14th, better known as Valentine’s Day. Having played the beta, I had no reservations about dropping some money on the game, lighting the candles, and diving in. For Honor is a game that pits the three most well-known warriors against each other in a new take on the fighting genre. There is your standard fighting mechanics, you swing and move to learn, but features the ability to quickly change stances to block, dodge, and attack differently in each stance. I have easily put in 75+ hours into this game, as I am a huge fan of For Honor. However, I have not played the entire game. Despite it being released, the ending is not as satisfying as it could’ve been. I have not explored every nook and cranny of the game. However, I have worked through the game to give my recommendation to the community. Overall, I give For Honor a 4/5 Rosies. It was a game for the ages in my book, if only they cared enough to give us dedicated servers to enjoy it at its best.

Rap and hip-hop have always been explicit genres of music. With the artists in these genres commonly partaking in various illegal activities, rap has become synonymous with these same actions that take up a majority of the content in this music. Although there are other artists that have brought in to the idea of being a positive role model, seldom do any of these rappers get the same kind of publicity as their more explicit counterparts.

One of these rappers that has taken the positive role model ideal and completely bought into this lifestyle is Chance the rapper. Born Chancellor Jonathan Bennett, he has proved himself to not only be a wholesome rapper, staying from the idolizing of illegal activity but is a philanthropist that cares about returning to his community. On February 20th of this year Chance the Rapper bought out all of the tickets to go see “Get Out” in a Chicago movie theater. Again Chance the Rapper had recently donated one million dollars out of his own pocket among other various personal donations to many Chicago Public schools.

As these shameless acts did not show of exemplary of a person Chance the Rap- per, all of the music he has ever released has been available for free online. He also is an independent rapper appearing in collaborations although not signing with a record label since his debut. To add to this accomplishment, in the past Grammys, Chance was nominated seven times and took home three awards. He won best New Artist, Best rap performance with “No Problem”, and Best Rap Album Coloring Book. In doing so, He had best veteran rappers ScHoolboy Q, Drake, and even Kanye West, all in the same year as winning best new artist.

Although Chance may be new to the mainstream rap scene, he has definitely made an impact already breaking almost all stereotypes with his music. The ever wholesome Chance poses for a picture

The Hour of Our Discontent

By Maggie Otis

Humans are special creatures. In search of greater efficiency and standardization, we have created the least standardized measure possible, time. A relative and fickle beast, our society runs with its nose to its watch, phone, clocks, bells, alarms, etc. What happened to rising with the sun and working until twilight? We are slaves, and our master has a name: Eastern Standard Time.

EST, PST, GMT, the lists stretch on for a whopping 79 different time zones, some of which are only 30 or 45 minutes ahead of another. As a programmer, they make me want to beat out the little hair I have left. If you are ever looking for a fun programming project, write a program that takes in a location and returns what time it is there. If that sounds simple, you’d be surprised. After studying the disaster that is our world time-zone system, the case for universal time looks better and better, and is in fact what most computer runs on in the background.

That aside, KRT presents a big problem to me, a Terre Haute resident with an easternward view. The Haute, as nobody so affectionately calls this town, sits on the far western side of an already too-large time zone. While the east coast sun sets over the mountains at a reasonable hour, the midwestern sun has thrown in the towel hours before. While Manhattan enjoys a beautiful sunset over the ocean, we Rose Staters drag our feet towards those first hour classes we register forgetting sec in the pitch dark.

Fortunately for us, we will soon see, unfortunately, I am not the only one looking at an issue with the relationship between daylight and time of day. Long ago, deep in the frozen wasteland of Canada, they created a monster with the intention of saving us: Daylight Saving Time.

Shut the entire clock over 60 hours so we can have more time in the light? What an egocentric-centric concept. What is next? Making every building a single story so that we never have to climb up stairs again?

You would imagine they would stick to their guns (repeal) now that there is a republican majority.

The GOP doesn’t care about protecting the environment.

The Fightin' Engineers took on a double header against Carthage. The Engineers blew Carthage out the first game in a 7-4 win. However, the second game was way more interesting as Carthage won 2-1. Despite the loss, the Engineers have displayed a high level of excellence which makes it exciting to follow the team to see what they will accomplish this season.

The Fightin’ Engineers traveled to Florida over spring break. The team played Northwestern and Milwaukee. It was a slow week for the team as they could not come out with a victory. Despite the losses, the team has shown their ability to work hard, work together and are determined to turn around their season. The team has not had any games since spring break. Their next game is March 19th against MacMurray.

Rose-Hulman fell 7-2 against D1’s nationally ranked DePauw University on Saturday. Georges Adam led the team by playing a key role in both match points. Adam won a straight set match at No. 2 singles and combined with Brandon Benedit in No. 1 doubles.

Another standout performer includes Austin Perry. He is a true freshman and has honestly been turning it up on the JV team. He recently recorded his first college match win to start off such a young career.

Rose-Hulman currently stands at 7-4 on the season with two losses to Nationally ranked in the D2 and D3 levels. The Men’s team will be back in action with matches at Franklin and Wabash on March 12th. It is still young in the season which makes it so much more exciting.

Got a Hangover?

Moosewoods Leu

Staff Biter

If you’re planning to drink this auspicious St. Patrick’s Day, you might get a hangover. It’s an occupational hazard. Don’t worry, those of us at the Flipside have got you covered. After all, we are the newspaper’s top and most trustworthy source of correct information. Armed with the ability to Google and the patience to read through the “research” presented, we’ve got a few hangover cures you might want to try.

1. Get an IV drip

This does something to help you, which I haven’t the room to fully explain. So trust me on this. Go out and raid your local hospital in the name of health.

2. Go to a Sauna

This is a Russian favorite. And as we all know, Russia is in right now. If you campaign to your local Rose-Hulman rep, they’ll probably install a sauna on campus at the SRC. This option is only if you think your hangover will last a couple of years, as that is how long it will take for construction to be complete.

3. Hair of a Dog

For those who don’t know, hair of a dog refers to drinking more alcohol in order to minimize the hangover. As St. Pat’s is on a Friday, I have it on good authority that the Bone is serving breakfast shots early Saturday morning. Time of service TBA.
