

Rose-Hulman Institute of Technology

Rose-Hulman Scholar

---

The Rose Thorn Archive

Student Newspaper

---

Winter 12-22-2020

Volume 56 - Issue 11 - Tuesday, December 22, 2020

Rose Thorn Staff

Rose-Hulman Institute of Technology, library@rose-hulman.edu

Follow this and additional works at: <https://scholar.rose-hulman.edu/rosethorn>

---

Recommended Citation

Rose Thorn Staff, "Volume 56 - Issue 11 - Tuesday, December 22, 2020" (2020). The Rose Thorn Archive. 1250.

<https://scholar.rose-hulman.edu/rosethorn/1250>

THE MATERIAL POSTED ON THIS ROSE-HULMAN REPOSITORY IS TO BE USED FOR PRIVATE STUDY, SCHOLARSHIP, OR RESEARCH AND MAY NOT BE USED FOR ANY OTHER PURPOSE. SOME CONTENT IN THE MATERIAL POSTED ON THIS REPOSITORY MAY BE PROTECTED BY COPYRIGHT. ANYONE HAVING ACCESS TO THE MATERIAL SHOULD NOT REPRODUCE OR DISTRIBUTE BY ANY MEANS COPIES OF ANY OF THE MATERIAL OR USE THE MATERIAL FOR DIRECT OR INDIRECT COMMERCIAL ADVANTAGE WITHOUT DETERMINING THAT SUCH ACT OR ACTS WILL NOT INFRINGE THE COPYRIGHT RIGHTS OF ANY PERSON OR ENTITY. ANY REPRODUCTION OR DISTRIBUTION OF ANY MATERIAL POSTED ON THIS REPOSITORY IS AT THE SOLE RISK OF THE PARTY THAT DOES SO.

This Book is brought to you for free and open access by the Student Newspaper at Rose-Hulman Scholar. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Rose Thorn Archive by an authorized administrator of Rose-Hulman Scholar. For more information, please contact ligget@rose-hulman.edu.

COVID-19 and Campus: Quick Updates

Remember to continue following campus guidelines and performing self-checks. Nearly all information on new campus policies and changes can be found in the Rose Ready document.

Most up-to-date version here —

Rose Ready Guide, Version 15.0 \(December 18, 2020\)

Additional information can be found on Rose-Hulman websites.

As of Tuesday, December 22nd, 2020...

(Data from Rose-Hulman COVID-19 Dashboard)

New Positive Cases from Past 7 Days

1 Students

1 Employees

1 Contractor/Affiliate

Surveillance in Total...

Total Tests Performed
Since May 2020 — 27,620

Total Positive Cases
Since May 2020 — 131

False Fraud and Foolishness:

Republicans Continue to Doubt Biden Victory

Colin Beach
Rose News Editor

With the inauguration of President-elect Joe Biden less than one month away, millions of Americans -- and a few members of Congress too -- seem still unable to accept the reality of a one-term Trump presidency. After the verification of the country's votes by the Electoral College, Republicans of Congress have been more openly accepting of the Biden win, but several continue to cast doubt on the election results. Even after the rejection of over twenty-five lawsuits from battleground states and highest authority of the Supreme Court, Trump loyalists are devoted to fighting on.

A major setback for those in disbelief was Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell's acceptance of the election. Though his new support for Biden carries little meaning for Democrats -- McConnell was near silent on the matter for over a month, and even Russian President Vladimir Putin congratulated Biden before he did (by a few hours) -- Republicans looking to challenge the election now have little momentum with the decision from their ranking member. McConnell has even gone as far as to plead that those with him in the Senate not object when Congress formally accepts the Electoral College's votes in January. According to McConnell, such proceedings would force a vote that would reflect poorly on Congress, as members would have to publicly decide between Trump or democracy and its votes. Some Representatives, however, have already declared themselves committed to objecting. Should more prominent Republicans have accepted the election earlier, perhaps much of this baseless contesting could have been avoided.

And so, Trump loyalists continue to push on. Mail-in ballots continue to be falsely claimed as fraudulent, but only in Biden-won states, though many more states also made changes to procedure because of the pandemic. Votes for the presidential election are called into question, but votes for local elections are not despite often being on the same ballot. And a new lawsuit to the Supreme Court hopes to overturn the decisions of the Pennsylvania courts and hand the state to Trump. It is very unlikely to suc-

Mitch McConnell has congratulated Joe Biden on winning the US Presidential Election, making him the highest-ranking Republican to acknowledge the election results.

Image courtesy of the Financial Times

ceed, considering the massive Texas multi-state-supported lawsuit attempt bordering on treason and insanity did not. Reports about the Trump administration also describe talks of martial law (military take over of states) to force new elections, special counsel investigations led by conspiracy theorist lawyers, and of course debates of whether or not Trump will attend Biden's inauguration or even leave the White House. All comes together in the closing of a historic (most would also say infamous) chapter of American history. Millions of Trump supporters are continuing their protests, caught up in so many lies that they believe they won and that fraud and theft are taking the election away. And even with the turn of McConnell, other prominent Republicans are saying the same. It is hard to tell when their viewpoints will change to see reality, or when stalls on work because of it will end, so until then most are just waiting it out until Biden is sworn in in January.

Congress Approves Stimulus

Jonathan Kawauchi
World News Editor

A second round of stimulus checks was recently passed in the $900 billion economic relief package from Monday evening, however the amount per person is half as much as last time at $600.

As a new wave of COVID-19 sweeps through the US, millions of Americans are struggling financially due to lost jobs, shifts and wages after almost a year of the pandemic. Whether or not another stimulus package was coming was unclear until recently and now only the president's signature is required to finalize the economic relief package.

Unlike the initial round of checks from the Coronavirus Aid, Relief and Economic Security Act, which took months to arrive in some cases, this new round will be rolled out faster. According to the Treasury Secretary Steven Mnuchin, the stimulus checks could reach people's bank accounts as early as next week.

A reason for the late checks during the initial rollout was the oversight of Social Security recipients, as well as Supplemental Security Income recipients, Railroad Retirement Board beneficiaries and Veterans Administration beneficiaries. Many in these categories don't file tax returns, which the IRS relied on for distributing the stimulus payments. In order to correct this, the new bill ensures that those recipients will receive the $600 checks automatically.

Another change from the last round of stimulus checks is the amount that dependent children can receive, which has gone up from $500 to $600 from the CARES Act. Adult dependents, such as seniors or many college students, will still be excluded from this round of checks.

Gregory Daco, chief US economist at Oxford Economics, commented that while the deal may be later than expected and lower than many had hoped, it's better than nothing and hopefully can prepare the economy to transition as the initial vaccine rollout phase approaches..

Page 3: Entertainment!

Page 4: Opinions!

Page 5: Sports!

Page 6: Flipside!

You decide what's newsworthy.

Tuesdays at 5:15pm, online

Food and Fun with SAB's Virtual Cooking Class

Colin Beach
Rose News Editor

Last week, to help students relax and stay connected, Student Activities Board (SAB) hosted a virtual cooking class with professional chef Jyll Everman. The restaurant owner, chef, and former Food Network Star competitor also has a great talent for teaching others. Standing in the kitchen at home, I was able to follow along with other students spread across the country. Jyll had amazing tips and stories throughout the class, and in the end what we had cooked was delicious (not to mention easy to make). 5 stars.

As I go through school and prepare for life after college, I am slowly making sure to learn about more than careers and work. Cooking continues to be a major favorite activity of mine, and not just because I get to eat good food. The process of putting everything together and creating such amazing dishes is both relaxing and rewarding. And anything I can do to improve my cooking, whether asking my mom about family tricks and recipes or taking a cooking class – virtual or not – is a bonus to me. SAB's event was a lot of fun even in the one hour it only took. And in the midst of a pandemic, I was able to take my mind off of school and other stressors and just cook. I feel good cooking is something everyone should know. Not just enough to get by, but also to share amazing food and memories with family and friends. With the holidays coming up, people may not be able to celebrate together in big groups, but families will have their traditional foods, and that will at least make it a bit better.

Food brings people together, no matter the kind or where it is. Hopefully this wonderful meal from the virtual cooking class I took can do the same:

(Much thanks to SAB and Jyll for the recipe!)

Creamy Tomato Tortellini

1 20 oz package refrigerated cheese tortellini

3 Tbsp butter

3 cloves garlic, minced

3 Tbsp flour

1 cup milk

3/4 cup heavy cream

1 can (14 oz) diced canned tomatoes, undrained

3 cups fresh spinach

3 links cooked Italian Sausage, sliced thinly

1/2 cup parmesan cheese

dried Italian seasoning

1. Bring a medium pot of salted water to a boil.

2. In a large skillet or pot, melt the butter over medium heat. Add the garlic and cook for 1 minute, stirring constantly.

3. Sprinkle in the flour and stir until well combined. Cook 1 additional minute.

4. Slowly add the milk and heavy cream, again stirring constantly. Once the mixture has thickened (should be hot and slightly bubbling), stir in the can of tomatoes and stir until well combined.

5. Stir in spinach and cooked Italian sausage

6. Season with Italian seasoning, pepper flakes, salt, and pepper to taste. Stir in the parmesan cheese until fully incorporated.

7. Drop the tortellini into the boiling water and cook until it floats (about 3 minutes).

8. Drain pasta and add to the sauce, stirring carefully. If sauce becomes too thick, add pasta water until right consistency again.

9. Let simmer for at least 5 minutes while stirring, and serve.

The Struggle of Studying While Working

Aidan Moulder
Editor-in-Chief

Pursuing a degree at Rose-Hulman is already a struggle. Now, let's add in the less-than-controllable variables of online, from-home learning: family, chaotic pets, lack of focus, and most importantly: retail jobs. Most people at Rose probably went home and stayed entirely focused on schoolwork, but I had an exceptionally bright idea: why not get on the schedule at my retail job while I'm home so I can earn some money for Christmas shopping? Great idea, right?

Uh, maybe not. The money is great and I can't complain about that part, but you can probably imagine my frustration when a professor schedules a quiz for, say 7-9pm Eastern, and it just so happens that my shift on the day of the quiz completely overlaps the quiz window. It's easy enough to work things out and get things rescheduled, so it ends up not being that big of a deal. What ends up being a big deal is the fact that I use so much energy at work that when I sit down to

To make matters perhaps worse, I told the people responsible for writing the schedule that I would be willing to work a very early morning shift or two, because I fig-o'clock in the morning and work until 9am or 11am pretty much every other day through Christmas Eve. That's a timeframe in which I'm usually asleep, so having to work so early really managed to throw off my typical rhythm and get me into the habit of taking mid-day naps-- something which really cuts into time I could use for watching lectures or doing homework, and which resulted in being nearly an hour late to a two-hour lab meeting one time.

Basically, what I'm trying to say is that my "exceptionally bright idea" was actually a very bad idea and subjected me to additional unneeded stress in a time of abnormally high stress. I guess the good news is that after this Tuesday, I don't have to worry about school and can instead focus on work, Christmas, and the highly anticipated 2021.

Image courtesy of Hanson Lu

watch lecture videos or start a homework assignment I quickly lose focus and want nothing other than pure, blissful sleep, and before I know it, it's time for work again.

ured that might work better for my schedule on certain days. I guess something was lost in translation, because the entire next couple weeks after that conversation I was scheduled to come in at 4

College Football Seems Fixed

Matthew Supp
Flipside Editor

Is there even a point in watching the college football playoffs anymore? This is a question that plays on repeat when the end of the football season nears. I know that I am not alone. This year's playoffs, more so than any previous iteration of the CFB playoffs, needed to represent the teams that actually deserved to be there.

With some teams playing six games and others playing eleven games due to various reasons, this year required the Associated Press (the people who determine which teams make the playoffs) to be extra diligent with the decisions. Will they allow an undefeated Cincinnati team in, or will they allow a Notre Dame team that normally doesn't have a conference and got walloped by Clemson in? Will they rank the teams by effort and talent, or will they rate them by how much money each program rakes in on TV? I knew I could count on the NFL for corruption, bribery and dishonesty, but to know that it's something I can expect in the NCAA makes me

In fact, every year since its point of the playoff system was to broaden the competition for the top spots and games come the end of the season. Yet because of the limit of four teams to the playoffs, you see the same six or seven schools get a spot. As someone who lives in Cincinnati and is a fan of the Bengals, I knew that no matter what they did, they were going to be disrespected with the AP polls. Even with a 9-0 record, even with large victory margins, even with a conference championship, the AP polls were always going to turn a cheek.

It is the sad truth. I was very happy to see that Clemson beat Notre Dame, because it meant that Notre Dame wouldn't get in. But lo and behold I was made a fool by the gods of football and reminded that money means everything to everyone. I will root for OSU because that's another Ohio team, yet cognitive dissonance may prevail when I think about how OSU only played six games this year. It has been a charlie fox-trot of a football season, and one can only hope Clemson or Notre Dame don't win it all.

Image courtesy of Brayden George

Image courtesy of Alex Mertz

so happy.

It seems as if the same teams get in every year, Clemson, Alabama, and Ohio State.

inception, the college football playoffs have had two of those three teams in them. Every, single, year. The whole

Alabama Vs. Florida

Caleigh Kintner

Sports Editor

In a season of blowouts, Alabama finally got tested. Against a team that just wouldn't quit, the Crimson Tide required every last point. Nick Saban needed his offensive stars to shine as bright as they have all season.

Boy, did they ever.

Najee Harris rushed for 178 yards and scored five touchdowns. Mac Jones threw for 418 yards and five TDs. DeVonta Smith hauled in 15 receptions for 184 yards and two scores. It was just enough to send No. 1 Alabama to the College Football Playoff with a perfect record, holding off No. 11 Florida in a 52-46 shootout for the Southeastern Conference championship Saturday night.

"Those guys are pretty phenomenal. They have been all year," Saban said. "They certainly delivered tonight when we needed them to."

The Crimson Tide (11-0, No. 1 CFP) got its toughest challenge in a season of blowouts, but the result was the same. Another win. Now, with one of his best teams yet, the 69-year-old coach heads to the playoff in search of his seventh national title.

"This has been a year with a lot of disruptions," said Saban, who had his own bout with COVID-19. "The resiliency this team has shown this season to win 11 games is pretty phenomenal."

After trailing 35-17 at halftime, Florida made a game of it with a pair of third-quarter scores. And the Gators fought to the bitter end, adding two more TDs in the fourth period before the clock hit zero.

"We were rolling pretty good," said quarterback Kyle Trask, who threw for 408 yards and three TDs. "We just ran out of time."

Harris, the game's MVP, essentially established residency in the Mercedes-Benz Stadium end zones. The senior running back had 31 bruising carries, scoring on plays of 8 and 1 yards and leaping like a hurdler over a defender who tried to go low on a 19-yard run.

Amazingly, Harris was even more dynamic in the passing game. He hauled in five throws for 67 yards, including touchdown plays of 23, 17 and 7 yards in Alabama's first-half blitz. The shortest of those scoring catches may have been his best, as Harris sent a would-be tackler tumbling to the turf with a dazzling spin move.

"I've been catching the ball since birth," he quipped. "People don't expect it because of the running back name, but I can catch."

Harris set an SEC championship game record with his five touchdowns, breaking the mark of four scored by Auburn's Tre Mason in 2013. The Alabama senior also knocked off a couple of school records, setting new standards for career rushing TDs (44) and overall TDs (54).

Image courtesy of al.com

The two quarterbacks did nothing to hurt their standing as two of the leading Heisman Trophy contenders. Neither did Smith, the Crimson Tide's other top candidate. After Saturday night's performance, Harris should probably be in the mix as well.

"I'm not worried about that," he said. "The two guys we've got up there now is good enough."

In addition to catching all those passes, Smith came up with a key fumble recovery after Florida's Trey Dean picked off a throw from Jones, snatching the ball away from the intended receiver, only to cough it up on a brutal, blind-side hit by Alabama receiver John Metchie. Jones threw a 31-yard touchdown pass to Smith on the very next play.

Trask was 26 of 40 with a 51-yard scoring pass early on to Kadarius Toney, who finished with eight receptions for 153 yards. The Gators quarterback also hooked up with Trevon Grimes on a 50-yard touchdown throw, in addition to scoring one of his own with a 1-yard run.

Give Florida credit: Coming off a shocking home loss to LSU, the Gators fought to the very end.

"I thought we showed a lot of character," coach Dan Mullen said. "That was an excellent team we played ... give them credit. That's why they're ranked No. 1 in the country."

The final quarter was thriller for the socially distanced crowd of 16,520 scattered throughout the 75,000-seat stadium.

After Harris' lunged over from the 1 for final TD to extend Alabama's lead to 45-31, the Gators responded with a nine-play, 75-yard scoring drive that culminated with Damien Pierce's own 1-yard touchdown plunge. Alabama's high-powered offense struck right back. Harris ripped off a 29-yard run deep into Florida territory, and Smith finished it off by hauling in a 15-yard scoring pass from Jones after a play-action fake to Harris froze the Gators defense. Florida had one more big drive in its arsenal, zipping down the field on another 75-yard possession that ended with Trask lofting a 22-yard TD pass to his star tight end, Kyle Pitts. Trask then ran for a two-point conversion.

That would be the last gasp.

Alabama recovered an onside kick and ran out all but the final 16 seconds. Trask was sacked on the final play of the game.

After missing the College Football Playoff a year ago for the first time since the four-team format was adopted in 2014, the Crimson Tide is back in familiar territory with an offense that averages nearly 50 points a game and seemingly

Bucks Superstar Signing New Deal

Caleigh Kintner

Sports Editor

When the Milwaukee Bucks showed up for training camp on Sunday, Khris Middleton presented his teammate Giannis Antetokounmpo with a gift for his 26th birthday: a pen. Antetokounmpo did not understand its significance at first.

"Then I was thinking about it, and I realized he was wanting me to sign the contract," he said.

Antetokounmpo got the joke. He thought it was funny. But as more teammates arrived and they continued to bestow him with pens, he apparently stopped laughing.

"It got a little bit old," he said. "I've got 20 pens here in my locker."

The problem is that Antetokounmpo has not used any of them for their intended purpose. He has until Dec. 21 to sign a so-called supermax contract extension that would be worth about $227 million and would run through the 2025-26 season. Barring that, or a more modest extension, he would become an unrestricted free agent next summer.

Waiting is the hardest part in Milwaukee, which has gone 49 years since the Bucks won their only N.B.A. championship and now has no shortage of Greek Freak agita. Fans have watched Antetokounmpo blossom from a spindly-limbed teenager into one of the league's most dynamic forces, a back-to-back winner of the N.B.A.'s Most Valuable Player Award.

Now, as the days pass and the deadline to resolve his contract situation comes into sharper focus, Antetokounmpo is holding the city in a state of suspense.

Frank Madden, a management consultant and longtime Bucks fan who has written and co-hosted podcasts about the team, noted how a cloud had been hanging over the franchise in recent months because of the uncertainty surrounding Antetokounmpo, a cloud that had darkened in the wake of another early exit from the playoffs.

"But now we've reached this inflection point where it's not just about the national media saying, 'Does he want to leave?'" Madden said in a telephone interview. "It's also Giannis opening the door to that — or at least not slamming it shut by signing the extension."

Much of that feeling stems from comments that Antetokounmpo made — or chose not to make — on Wednesday at a virtual news conference. In addition to revealing that he had a new collection of unused pens, Antetokounmpo was noncommittal about his extension. He said he was leaving it up to his agents.

"I'm just focusing on basketball," he said. "I do what I love. What I love is playing basketball. What I love is improving. What I love is helping my teammates. What I love is winning games. And off the court, about agents and contracts, I'm not focusing on that. Not that I don't care about it. Obviously I care about it. It's a very big decision in my life, and probably one of the biggest decisions I'm going to make. But I just let my agent focus on that."

Antetokounmpo has options. He could sign the supermax deal by Dec. 21. He could sign a shorter-term contract — there is no deadline for that style extension — for less money. Or he could opt not to sign anything at all, which would not necessarily preclude him from signing a supermax extension next summer.

But it would also lead to several more months of questions and communal hand-wringing — for fans and for the Bucks' front office, which would need to weigh whether the team would be willing to risk letting him walk away next summer without seeking any compensation for him in a trade.

"For a guy who says he just wants to focus on basketball, it would be such a distraction," Bart Winkler, the host of a morning sports-talk radio show in Milwaukee, said in a telephone interview. "I think we'd all been assuming, whether it was going to be a short contract or a super max, that somehow, somehow, he would sign his next contract to stay in Milwaukee. And now, for the first time, there's some real concern that he might not."

WACKY QUOTES

From the North Pole

“Sometimes I give the elves lemon ice cream for dessert, except its snow the reindeer peed on instead of lemon ice cream.”

- Santa Claus

“One time at elf practice, my friend Jingle stuck his candy cane down the wrong hole.”

- Tinsel the Elf

“Every time it snows here Frosty gets a bit more powerful.”

- Ziggy the Elf

“We elves try to stick to the four main food groups: Candy, Candy Canes, Candy Corn, and Syrup.”

- Buddy the Elf

Did your prof say something hilarious or just great out of context? Did you hear something confusing or funny on your jaunt about the fine halls of this institution? We want to hear about it! Send your quotes with who said it to suppmg@rose-hulman.edu or fill out this nifty google form: <https://goo.gl/forms/bB339sx6GHohggYt1>

Santa Claus Says No Delays, New Things for the Naughty Children

Despite the setbacks in recent years up at the North Pole, Santa Claus tells me to expect all gifts to be on time as usual this Christmas morning.

He said that in the past few years he has earned some bad rep, and its now time to gain the public’s trust once again: “Especially in this crazy year, people need a stable beacon of hope to look to.” Claus believes that his ability to gives gifts will bring the world together.

I asked him about the elephant in the room, Covid-19. I wanted to know if he was worried that the mass transport of so many gifts handled by so many different elves could bring the virus from place to place as he flies around the globe. “Coronavirus this, Coronavirus that. Ain’t nobody got time for that!! The people need Christmas cheer and so Christmas cheer they shall receive.” Subtlety in conversation never was his forte.

I wanted to see a different perspective, so I called a well known elf, Legolas, to shed some light on the workers viewpoint. We met at a Starbucks and he calmy told me he was the wrong type of elf. He then gave me the cell phone number of the right type of elf, Buddy the elf. We met at a candy store he owned in New York City.

Buddy explained that while many of the elves had concerns, it seems as if the Coronavirus does not affect the elves in nearly the same fashion as it does humans. Buddy told me that when infected, the elves in the North Pole would develop an intense hunger for all things bitter and sour. They would act as if allergic to snow and would become violent when exposed to Christmas music. It sounded like the perfect anti-Christmas-Elf pandemic.

The top Elven nurses are working hard on a solution for this problem, Buddy said. But on the flipside, the pandemic symptoms make it perfect for the infected elves to make things for naughty children. No longer will there be coal in the stockings of naughty kids. One idea that has surfaced is filling the stocking with papers with pictures of the gifts the kids wanted on them. Another idea was to fill the stocking as normal, yet all gift boxes would explode with black confetti and have a list of all things the child did that was naughty.

Buddy closed by saying that while that Coronavirus poses no threat to speed of business, it poses an awkward moral question for Mr. and Mrs. Claus.

TOP TEN

Christmas Films

1. Die Hard
2. Die Hard 2
3. Die Hard 3
4. Die Hard 4
5. A Good Day to Die Hard
6. Independence Day
7. Batman Returns
8. LEGO Star Wars Holiday Special
9. Regular Star Wars Holiday Special
10. The Nightmare Before Christmas
11. Iron Man 3
12. Elf
13. Jim Carrey’s Grinch which is better than the original which is better than the newer animated one
14. The Shining
15. Batman and Robin
16. Edward Scissorhands
17. Home Alone
18. Home Alone 2 : Lost in New York
19. Home Alone 4: Found in Hoboken, NJ
20. A Christmas Story
21. Just any Christmas story actually, not necessarily a movie
22. The Biblical Christmas story
23. It’s a Wonderful Life
24. A Charlie Brown Christmas
25. The Polar Express
26. Frosty the Snowman

Meme of the Week

If you have any strong opinions on this meme or if you would like to send me a meme to put on here, read the thing at the bottom to figure out my email, then email me that meme and I will probably put it on here. Thanks in advance. *If you are reading this and want to earn a prize, find the hidden meme on this page and email me*